Drawing on Scripture, tradition, and personal experience, Ortberg explores the many facets of death and grief, offering insights and comfort to those who are grieving the loss of a loved one. He writes about the pain of loss, the longing for the departed, and the hope of resurrection. He also addresses the difficult questions that often arise in the wake of death, such as why God allows suffering and what happens to those who die without faith.

Ortberg's writing is both honest and hopeful, and he offers a unique perspective on death that is both comforting and challenging. He reminds us that death is not the end, but rather a new beginning, and that even in our grief, we can find hope and peace.
