Chapter 2: Identifying Your Habits

The first step to changing your habits is to become aware of them. In this chapter, we guide you through a reflective process to identify your current habits, both positive and negative. We explore different types of habits, their triggers, and the rewards they provide. By understanding your habits, you gain the power to make informed choices and start making positive changes.

Chapter 3: Setting Realistic Goals

Setting realistic goals is crucial for habit formation. In this chapter, we provide a step-by-step framework for setting achievable and motivating goals. We discuss the importance of aligning your goals with your values, breaking them down into smaller steps, and creating a timeline that supports your progress. By setting realistic goals, you increase your chances of success and build momentum over time.

SMART GOAL

Set a goal with the SMART structure to set yourself up for success!

S	Specific What exactly do I want to accomplish? (measurable and attainable)	Example: I will lose 5 pounds
M	Measurable How will I tell that I've accomplished it? (evidence to prove achievement)	Example: my weight will be 145 lbs
A	Achievable Actions to take to achieve the goal (make sure the goal is doable & reasonably achievable)	Example: eating 1700 calories a day and walking 40 minutes per day
R	Relevant Does this align with what you're trying to accomplish? (the goal should be important to you and align with your long-term objectives)	Example: it will help me to regain confidence
T	Time-based When should the goal be accomplished? (provide a deadline for the goal achievement)	Example: by the end of December
Fully formulated SMART goal: Example: I will lose 5 pounds by the end of December by eating 1700 calories per day and walking 40 minutes per day without fail, which will help me to regain confidence.

Your environment plays a significant role in your ability to develop positive habits. In this chapter, we explore ways to create a supportive environment that sets you up for success.
