SALAAH

THE PREFERRED METHOD OF PERFORMING SALAAH WHILST SITTING ON A CHAIR

Prayer (Fard & Sunnah) are all Fard. If you are unable to perform Ruku, Sajdah and Sujdah or all together, then you will be allowed to pray Qiyam and Ruku only and not perform Sajdah or Sujdah.

If you are able to sit on the floor and do Sajdah then it is not permitted to sit on a chair. If you are unable to perform Sajdah on the floor and you are only performing Ruku & Sujdah by performing with the hands, then you have a choice of sitting on the floor or on a chair. However, sitting on the floor is more desirable as this would bring you closer to the position of Qiyam, which is the main part of Sajdah and this is also more closer to the Sunnah. If a person has a problem of not sitting on the floor (i.e. they can't sit on the floor due to a leg problem) then they will not be permitted to sit on a chair throughout the Salah. They will have to perform all three positions, but for Ruku and Sujdah they can get up after Sajdah and sit on a chair or stool. One is allowed to sit on a stool during Sajdah or Ruku by adjusting the feet out towards the Qiblah, when made to a stool.

Sitting on a stool should only be if not possible when everything else is not possible.

If a person cannot perform Ruku & Sajdah at all throughout the whole of the prayer (i.e. they can't sit long up with the problem), but can perform them at times of their own pain, then it is better for them to perform Sajdah at times, while performing Qiyam on the floor.

QIYAAM

During Qiyam

All prayers with the feet pointing straight towards the Qiblah, when in Qiyam, one should sit on a chair or stool, if a person has a problem of not sitting on the floor, but only when it is necessary (i.e. when a person has a leg problem).

RUKU

During Ruku

For Ruku, when the hands are on the floor with the feet pointing towards the Qiblah, then it is better to sit on a chair or stool, if a person has a problem of not sitting on the floor, but only when it is necessary (i.e. when a person has a leg problem).

SAJDAH

During Sajdah

When sitting on a chair, one should sit on a chair or stool, if a person has a problem of not sitting on the floor, but only when it is necessary (i.e. when a person has a leg problem).

Your feet should point straight towards the Qiblah (unless there is a medical reason)

It is desirable that your feet should be close together in Ruku and Sajdah and pointing towards the Qiblah
